DEDICATION

1966268

To those men resting in Winnebago county cemeteries, who served with honor in the armed forces of the United States during war, this series of three books is dedicated.

In these three volumes an attempt has been made to compile genealogical and historical information of Winnebago county not readily available and which might become lost with the passing of years. If the descendants of the men mentioned above are thereby enabled to acquire some information of their ancestors not otherwise procurable the work will have served its purpose.

To Dr. Blanche Neil; Dr. H. F. Thompson; and Oscar G. Narum, county auditor, goes the thanks of the compiler, ^{L.D. Prewitt} for their patient cooperation.

PUBLISHED RECORDS OF WINNEBAGO COUNTY

Three histories of Winnebago county have been printed prior to this time, (1934). The first was in pamphlet form in 1872. It was also printed in the Summit from January 1 to March 14, 1872. It contained little biographical information and but few copies are in existence today. Because of the extreme scarcity of that early record it has been copied into this work. See Table of Contents in the front of this book.

The second history was published in 1884 entitled "History of Kossuth, Hancock and Winnebago counties". In 1917 the "History of Hancock and Winnebago counties" was published. Both of these last histories contained biographical sketches. The index to the 1917 volume biographies starts on page 503 in the back of Vol. II of that work. The index to the 1884 volume biographies is in the front of that work on page XIII. In 1934 the America Legion Post at Forest City prepared a history of the Post containing information concerning men of the entire county who had served in the World War. Copies of all three of these books are in the Genealogical section at the State Historical building at Des Moines. In 1928 an atlas of the county was printed which lists the names and ages of all the rural residents in the county by townships. In June 1933 the Swedish Baptist conference published a book, "Swedish Baptist work in Iowa, 1853-1933" of which chapter seven concerns the members of the Forest City church of that faith. The files of the Forest City Summit newspaper from 1871 to date are preserved in the newspaper section of the State Historical department.

Persons searching for lines among the early Norwegian and Swedish settlers in Winnebago county should note that in many instances among the early Norwegian and Swedish settlers in this county their old-country method of the selection of the family or "last" name was frequently followed. This system is as follows: The farm on which the family was living would have a name such as "Rendahl" and the owner of the farm would be known by his first name, Lars, and then the farm name as; Lars Rendahl.

The first born son

The oldest son would be given a Christian name, as Thor and he would be known as Thor Larson-Rendahl, until death of his father when he would inherit the farm and then would be known as Thor Rendahl. In this country since the law of primogeniture (oldest son inherit all property) does not apply, he would be apt to be known as Thor Larson throughout his life.

All sons except the eldest

The younger sons would be known by their Christian name and their last name would be the first name of their father with the "son" added, thus; the second son would be known as Knute Larson, (Knute, son of Lars). The daughters were all the same, a daughter, Ingaborg, would be known as Ingaborg Larsdatter (Ingaborg, daughter of Lars). In this country the earlier born sons frequently followed the Norwegian and Swedish method of securing their last name while as American ways were adopted the latter born sons would follow the American custom-so that frequently at the present time, (1934) in this county we find two men, full brothers, with different last names. If the latter born sons in Norway or Sweden would buy a farm they would usually take the farm name as their last name.

The persons of Scandinavian descent in this county today are frequently called by their second Christian name, as S. Ole Swenson.

Story and Winnebago counties are largely Scandinavian in population descent.

N.B.: Newspapers do not publish obituaries with the accuracy of genealogists. The obituaries are usually prepared by the surviving members of the family during a period of mental strain; consequently errors are often made. At an early time and even occasionally in more recent days, death notices and obituaries would be overlooked and not published. So the absence of any notice should not be considered proof that the death did not occur in this locality. Also, persons knowing of approximate dates of death will do well to search the Summit files at the state historical building at Des Moines in order to make sure that the death notice was not overlooked. All Summit files are stored in the state historical building.

THE SAME NAME MAY APPEAR ON THE SAME PAGE SEVERAL TIMES

Look for all possible spellings of the name wanted as newspaper spelling is not always accurate, and Scandinavian names may have changed spelling. Also in some instances the Scandinavian "son" at the end of the last name has been dropped. See page two of Vol. I for Norwegian and Swedish method of selection of last name.
